Being silly with some of my students

Announcing a performer at a bi-annual Student Concert

I have been teaching music since I was nine-years-old (to the children in the neighborhood). All through grade-school, high-school and college, I taught, performed and loved music. During my college years (Bachelor of Fine Arts from UC Irvine) , and for several years after, I enjoyed visiting elementary schools and preschools to do musical shows and demonstrations. I developed the Kids and Keyboard program to give students a well-rounded, disciplined music education, while still having fun in a group.

Although I thoroughly enjoy being goofy with the children in my classes, I am a serious music teacher. I expect my students to practice every day and do their music homework every week. My students start with “Mary Had a Little Lamb” and when they graduate from my classes - if they practice - they are playing Mozart, Beethoven and Tchaikovsky!

Fun Fact:
My Great Great Great Great Grandfather was Ludwig Van Beethoven's first piano teacher!
His name was Christian Gottlob Neefe (1748 - 1798)
